The Creative Works Studio is an occupational therapy, community arts and skill development program facilitated by the Inner City Health Program at St. Michael's Hospital in partnership with Good Shephard Non-Profit Homes Inc. and the Ontario Trillium Foundation.

The Creative Works Studio is a bright and fully equipped working art studio located outside of the hospital in the South Riverdale neighbourhood. The Studio's mandate is to use art as a tool for healing, developing a caring community, fostering economic development projects and generating public awareness and responsibility for inner city and mental health issues. Members of the Studio are artists with diverse backgrounds including those living in poverty, people with mental and physical illnesses, people who are homeless and marginally housed, those who are isolated, women at risk and individuals with addictions.
